VENUE OVERVIEW:

Constructed between 1951 and 1960, the War Memorial Chapel is one of the leading landmarks on the Virginia Tech campus and honors students who have given their lives in defense of the United States as members of the Armed Services. The chapel was constructed in the center of campus overlooking the Virginia Tech Drillfield.

The upper level contains Memorial Court with eight sculptured Indiana limestone pylons representing, from left to right: Brotherhood, Honor, Leadership, Sacrifice, Service, Loyalty, Duty, and Ut Prosim (the University motto: "That I May Serve").

The names of alumni who have died while in military service are carved on the pylons.

The four left pylons were designed by Henry Kries; the right pylons were designed by Charles Rudy.

Centered at the back of Memorial Court is a cenotaph, which contains names of the seven alumni awarded the Medal of Honor.
