

Sikuli: Huichol Artwork

A symbolic artwork originally created by the Huichol (pronounced “we-chole”), Native Mexicans. These artworks have an eye in the center representing seeing and understanding things we cannot see.

- 1) Take two popsicle sticks and put them into an X shape.
- 2) Loop and tie yarn around sticks to fasten them together.
- 3) Loop end of the yarn that is connected to the yarn ball around one stick, then follow the loop onto the next stick, and continue around the circle until the web grows.
- 4) If switching colors, cut the current yarn and tie the new color into the old color’s place, tucking in the ends.
- 5) To finish, loop yarn around one stick and tie off, cut a tail, and tuck in the tail underneath a few loops. Cut off the excess yarn.
